Government Policy and Oil Business

- Up to now, oil business is controlled by Ministry of Industry and Commerce.
- Domestic Oil Price Structure is considered and approved by two ministries including Ministry of Finance and Ministry of Industry and Commerce.
- Retail Prices at gas stations are controlled by the Government.
- Oil Selling Prices are terminated by market or by negotiation.
- Lao Fuel and Gas Association (LFGA) plays an important role to help the government in providing information and maintaining of oil business in the country e.g. all oil companies shall be LFGA’s member.
- Lao State Fuel Company (LSFC) as a National Oil Company also plays a significant obligation in securing stable supply of fuel for the country, and completing with other companies under market oriented economy.
Oil and Gas Market

- There are over 1,200 gas stations throughout the country
- Modern gas stations with good service and necessary facility are now in trend for society
- Trans country Pipeline Viet Nam- Laos is under feasibility study process
- Some of Oil refineries are now under construction, and the production of those is expected to cover 40% of oil consumption of the country
- Lao Government is considering to adjust oil business regulations to meet the high competition
CHALLENGES

- High competition between oil companies, especially, PTT, PetroVietnam, Petrolimex and etc.
- Ineffective implementation of the government regulations
- Adjustments of retail price is sometimes slow comparing to world oil price fluctuation
- Sourcing oil from third country is still unsuccessful
- Raw material supply to local refineries is needed to share benefit with neighbouring countries
Conclusion

- Oil market in Lao PDR is going under the open market policy of the government
- Competition on oil business will be higher
- LFGA contributes in maintaining oil business
- LSFC is a leading oil company and plays a significant obligation in stabilizing prices and fuel supply
- Refined oil production will be a new source of fuel supply for the country
